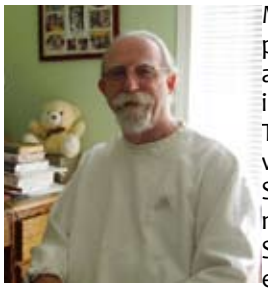
Mac Mclaughlin - The Story of Marcia Moore November 11, 2010



Mac McLaughlin has been a professional, teaching, and consulting astrologer for over 40 years. Based in Vancouver, he has appeared on TV and radio across Canada, and wrote the weekly newspaper column Straight Stars which appeared for nearly eleven years in the Georgia Straight, Canada's largest weekly entertainment magazine. In his early twenties, Mac came across an astrology book and realised his intrinsic connection to the stars and the depth of information available through them. Thus began a journey of studying and reading the stars for people from all walks of life, all over the world. In 1972, he received initiation from his spiritual Master, Param Sant Kirpal Singh Ji Maharaj. Mac has studied eastern mysticism and spiritual philosophy resulting in a deep knowledge of karma and reincarnation.

Mysticism and palmistry along with Western and Eastern astrology are a few of the tools he uses in his consultations. "According to the mystics, our fate and destiny are written on our hands and in the stars" says Mac.

Join us Rembrance Day, as Mac shares his insights into the Marcia Moore Story. Marcia Moore came from a well-to-do New England family and was heir to the Sheraton Biltmore Hotel chain. A great Astrologer, she co-authored several books with her first husband, Mark Douglas. The very popular "Yoga, Youth and Reincarnation" by Jess Stern is about Marcia and her yoga expertise. In 1976, Mac sponsered Marcia, arranging talks for her in Seattle, Vancouver, Victoria, Courtney and Texada Island. She met her future husband, Dr. Howard Sunny Altunian while on tour. They married shortly thereafter and within a year she had gone missing. Mac's talk explores the astrology surrounding her story as he has their charts, as well as the charts for the day of her disappearance, and of course, a surprise announcement regarding it all.

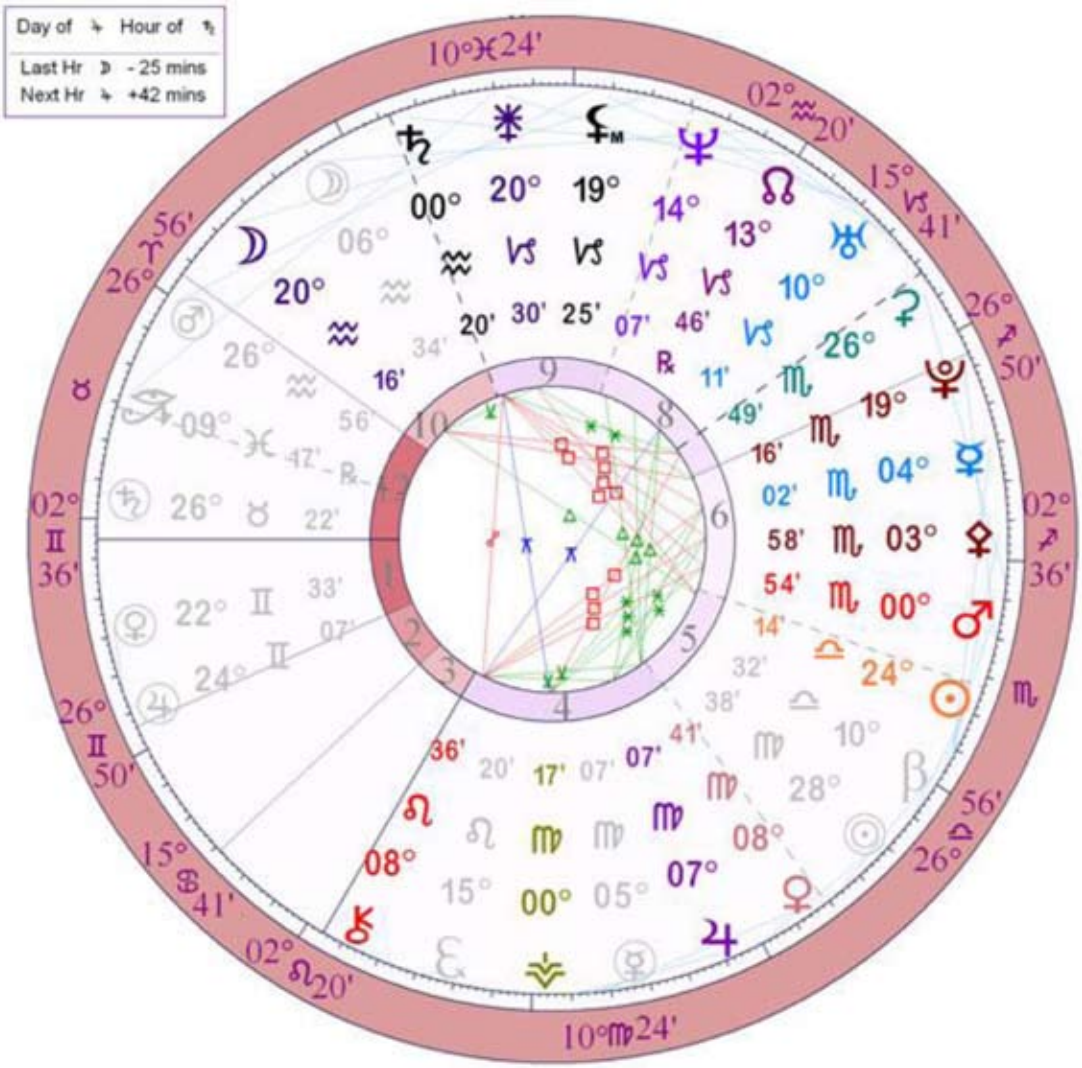
The Guild was founded October 17, 1991 at 19:45 PDT in Fleetwood, Surrey by 29 astrologers. On that day Neptune and Uranus flanked the North Node in the eighth house. It is an astrological guild after all. We are a Libra Sun organization with loads of planets in Scorpio, and we always gather for a dinner before our meeting and take a social break half way through our monthly talk. Members also tend to arrive and/or leave in pairs. Last month we experience our first Nodal return and this will be followed by a progressed New Moon at 13°Scorpio 32', the degree of our Nodes is also 13°.

"The Needle of the Compass"—the Lunar Nodes in Action.

The luminaries are the two most powerful influences in our life; the Nodes combine their cycles to time not only the eclipses but the unfolding of our lives. The cycle of the nodes is 18.6 years, meaning we might experience five in a course of long life. Nothing works in isolation and these derived points interact with the ones that help define our destiny at fairly short intervals to ensure we keep heading toward True North both individually and collectively.

Anne Massey a professional astrologer since 1988 is the author of Venus, her Cycles, Symbols and myths. She is the founding president and has served the Guild since inception.



LOUISIANA AND ENBRIDGE ECOLOGICAL DISASTERS

I've found myself very interested in a Uranian planet this summer especially Hades as it pertains to the Louisiana oil spill disaster and the Enbridge fiasco. Firstly, I should give some meaning to the function of Hades according to both authors Eileen Nauman and Martha Lang-Westcott - 'Hades makes contact with the past so that we can understand the causality in terms of current problems or secrecy, debilitating conditions, discovery of error and those things or people that elicit reactions of disgust'. When I read the definition I couldn't help but wonder if Hades had some hand in either or both of these environmental disasters.

The oil spill in Louisiana happened on April 27 2010. Looking at the Louisiana oil spill disaster I noted that as early as April 17th at around 2:00 pm Hades moved to 28°Gemini making a trine (easy flow of energy) with Neptune at 28° Aquarius (Neptune: hidden matters, nautical matters, oceans, delusions and mass delusion, dissolution, alienation) while Neptune was applying to an exact conjunction with Chiron at 29°. Uranus on that date is at 28° Pisces opposite Retrograde Saturn at 29° Virgo making a t-Square with Hades. As we know the opposition has been a 'push for change/freedom (Uranus)' struggle with 'maintain the status quo (Saturn)', back and forth since the 3rd of November '08. But back in 2008 the opposition was only at 18° (busy t-squaring Venus at 18°) while Hades was sitting at 28° Gemini. It took until April 23/10 at 9:48 am for the exact opposition of Saturn/Uranus at 28° Pisces/Virgo to create a t-square with Hades which was moving onto the Ascendant at 28° Gemini (opposing the midpoint of Saturn/Uranus at 28° Sagittarius). The volatility of this chart doesn't end there though because we see Venus squaring Neptune at 28° Taurus and Aquarius – 'instability, weakness, the danger of being exposed to peculiar and strange influences or being exploited by other people' is how this combination is described. But does it relate to this situation. I think it does. Venus in Taurus rules values and what we need to do/have/get to feel secure and it also rules teams and teamwork (the workers whose lives were lost or who blew the whistle in the first place before the explosion, shares of stock (we know what happened to BP stocks), revenues and salaries, money, banks and bankers, attachments of all kinds (BP's attachment to profit). Maurice Fernandez, author of Neptune; the End of Hope, the Beginning of Truth, tells us that "the outer planets, Uranus, Neptune and Pluto are promoters of the evolution of consciousness. They symbolize the impulse to develop a higher perspective on life and to increase awareness about the ultimate reasons for existence". On April 23rd, Neptune is conjunct Chiron in Pisces at 00°. Barbara Hand Clow, author of Chiron states that "when Chiron is in Pisces, there is a crisis over connecting with the God force, the universal oneness' and she continues with the comment that although [humanity] may hear the clarion call (for the connection) what is needed to solidify and integrate the lesson is experience. This horrific disaster has provided more than enough 'experience' for a deeper understanding to be grounded in human consciousness. All I can say about that is .....no kidding!

I remember something in the news that workers had brought the faulty condition of the system, machinery or valves, to the attention of BP before the actual explosion.

The actual explosion happened on the 27th of April and at 9:32 am much of the chart looks the same as on the 23rd except that Venus now has moved into the 12th house at 2° Gemini conjuncting the Mar/Uranus midpoint at 4°, squaring the Mars/Saturn midpoint at 4° Virgo in the 3rd house and quincunxing Pluto (oil) in Capricorn at 5°- is this a recipe for disaster?. To add to the mix we also have Ceres conjuncting Pluto at 4° Capricorn and we know that Ceres relates to the environment; she giveth and she taketh away. The Moon at 25° Libra has just passed over the Mars/Uranus midpoint at 23° (volatility, destructive energy).

The Enbridge oil spill on July 26th also had Hades featured prominently at 29 deg. of Gemini and exactly on the midpoint of Mar/Uranus (explosive and destructive forceful energy) and also square to the midpoint of Mars/Saturn (destructive forceful energy) in Virgo at 29 degrees. Saturn and Uranus are still in opposition at 0 degrees and Mars, at 28° is applying to conjunct with Saturn. The Moon has moved to Aquarius (the sign of humanity) and is squaring the Saturn/Ceres midpoint at 10° Scorpio – (creating tension in the nurturing function as explained by Demetra George author of The Asteroid Goddess). The North Node at 10° Capricorn is applying to a conjunction with Pluto at 3° which will happen in November. North Node can bring surprises so we'll see what transpires through the fall. Finally, on July 26th we see a t-square again between Saturn/Mars opposing Uranus (applying to a conjunction) to Jupiter and all are t- squaring Pluto. We can easily see the volatility of this chart and again, reports tell us the following "(By Todd Spangler, Detroit Free Press) WASHINGTON — The Obama administration said Saturday it repeatedly warned Enbridge Energy Partners about safety issues along its Lakehead oil pipeline system that runs through Michigan, even calling company officials to Washington earlier this year for a meeting on what it deemed "a series of major failures.

Some of those concerns specifically involved Line 6B running from Griffith, Ind., to Sarnia, Ontario, a section of which apparently ruptured last week, sending hundreds of thousands of gallons of crude oil into a tributary of the Kalamazoo River and "According to the transportation department, Enbridge has spilled about 1.5 million liters of oil since 2002, roughly half the amount released in a matter of hours before the Michigan leak was contained".

It is interesting that in both situations that the warning signs were there – people in high places were being told but were not listening and it begs the question; will these personal and corporate 'experiences' so deeply felt by so many be the catalyst for change, for growth, for conscious responsibility to our environment and to our fellow man?

President's message:

Dear members we find ourselves moving quickly into our new year and this year we decided to do something different. We have sent out several notices for your perusal. You will see it again in this newsletter. If by any chance you have missed the information on this wonderful program for September, check into the website at www.astrologyguild.com or let either Denise or Dawn know and we'll send it to you. This will be an extremely informative weekend with Kelly. We look forward to seeing you there.

This is a special year for the Guild as it's our 19th anniversary and in May we had our Nodal return at 13° Capricorn/Cancer. So, what could that mean for our Guild? Well, for one thing it means that we are finishing one cycle and beginning a new one. Leaving behind those accomplishments and achieved goals and setting new sights for the organization. As we look at the Progressed chart for the Guild we can see that as of Aug 11/10 (by my program) the Progressed Sun moved into a tight conjunction with Progressed Mars in Scorpio at 13° in the 6th house of service promising energized focus for the coming year. Also, late in July, Progressed Mercury moved to 2° Sagittarius and into the 7th house of partnerships. Although that puts Mercury in an exiled condition it also can give the 'collective mind' of our Guild the opportunity to create together an expanded vision and to incorporate higher education/certification (which Anne Massey has been working on for some time now). Progressed Mercury, because of the retrograde period, will occupy the 7th house for the next 62 years. Mercury is also the ruler of the Ascendant (Gemini). Can you imagine what ideas and dreams the Guild will be able to pursue in the years to come!

We are planning a special celebration for completion of the Nodal cycle at this AGM on October 14th at Stephano's Restaurant next door. We will be dining first starting at 6:00 pm. We do need a minimum of 25 people attending and ordering dinner. Please email anne@astrologicallyspeaking.com to say that you will join us for dinner, and also send of copy of that email to astrologyguild@shaw.ca as well. Dinner at Stefanos costs around $20-25, appetizers around $10. Again, the evening will begin at 6:00 pm.

The AGM begins at 6:30pm. It's important that you attend and contribute your vote and your voice for the next year.

At 7:30pm our speaker, Anne Massey will present a PowerPoint presentation "The Needle of the Compass"—the Lunar Nodes in Action. Certainly an appropriate talk considering that we are beginning a new Nodal cycle. This is a special evening for us to come together. Nineteen years ago 29 astrologers came together to form the Guild and we would feel very proud to have even more than 29 astrologers present to commemorate this milestone. We hope to see you there.

We are looking forward to an inspiring and informative year ahead and trust that it will be all that you hoped for.

Denise and Dawn

Afterwords from Kelly Surtees on her September workshop at the Guild

My September workshop at the Fraser Valley Guild explored the topic of Secondary Progressions and Predictions. We discussed the Day-for-a-year symbolism and its ancient roots as a symbolic time system. (Other progressions less widely used by astrologers include tertiary – day for a lunar month, and minor – one lunar month for a year.)

A key feature of working with secondary progressions is the way planets actual movement in relation to each is maintained. That is, in the sky, the Moon moves faster than the Sun and this relationship is maintained in Secondary Progressions (but isn't in Solar Arc directions).

As a predictive tool, secondary progressions are especially effective when combined with major transits, however they are insightful on their own. In the workshop, we discussed a simple 'compare and contrast' technique which is quite insightful with all personal planets.

Compare and Contrast

Using the simple but often overlooked qualities of the Zodiac Signs – elements and modalities - consider how your progressed Moon sign compares to your natal Moon sign. How do the elements get along? Are you in a progressed Moon water phase (high emotion/sensitivity) versus your natal air Moon element? Or has your progressed Moon moved into a fixed sign versus your natal mutable sign? Imagine what moving from fire to water or mutable to fixed feels like. That's symbolic of your current inner emotional state. The progressed Moon moves about a degree a month, completing a full revolution of the Zodiac (and therefore your chart) approx every 27 years.

This technique works with progressed Mercury, Venus or Mars too. Venus is fun to work with by progression because of her link to relationships. Compare and contrast the element and modality of your progressed Venus with your natal Venus. What qualities have changed? Do they match up with other influences in your chart or are they totally different? Imagine what it would be like to say have birth/progressed Venus in a cardinal sign until your mid thirties, perhaps being a leader in love and impatient in matters of the heart, then Venus progressing into a fixed sign where patience regarding romance is possible and stability/settling down more important.

Progressions are also fun to work with re the angles – the Midheaven (MC) and Ascendant. Just recently, my partner has been experiencing lots of progress and movement in his secondary career, one he ultimately wants to move into. I checked his progressions and sure enough, his MC just recently (literally days ago) progressed into a new sign. Sometimes this can explain that 'some thing's shifted' phenom we notice but don't always understand.

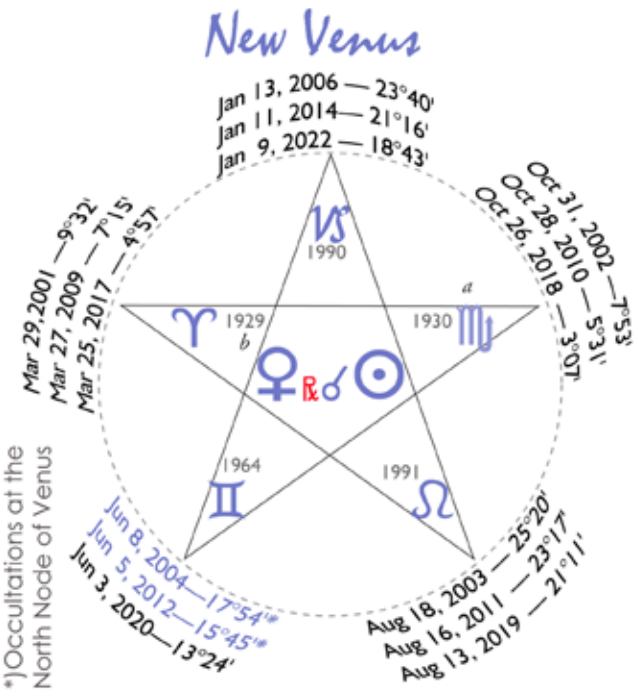
These concepts and more are the work of Secondary Progressions – to show you the unfolding of your inner landscape. Have you considered the impact of your progressed planets on your life as it stands now? If so, tell us about it below!

This article is published on the Guild official website and invites all the members to join the discussion.

Tracking Venus

The upcoming Venus retrograde cycle (October 8-November 18) is one of re-evaluation. The question Venus asks is 'do you love it'. Is it worth your effort, energy, and time to pursue what you are currently involved in? There is more to Venus than a few pleasantries and compliments. Venus has a magical cycle, which works with the precision of a metronome.

The cycle in each sign is 100 years —to awaken us out of our slumber and coasting through life on cruise control. Think of the hundred year sleep in the fairytale Sleeping Beauty (the Briar Rose). The pattern plotted by Venus around Earth looks like a five-petalled rose.



There are five cycles which form the pentacle shape; the New Venus signs and degrees are in the illustration. Venus is visiting the sign of Scorpio at length now. At a glance we might note that Venus moved into Scorpio September 8, 2010 and into Sagittarius January 7, 2011. On closer examination we see that Venus will return back to Libra for three weeks instead of the norm of 24 days. The last time Venus stationed in Libra was in 1903. The previous time Venus formed her conjunctions and stations at the same degrees as this year was back in 1759.

The New Venus in Scorpio cycle began in 1930, Rx stations in Scorpio in 1962 and the direct stations in Scorpio occurred in 1906-2002. Venus comes back for an encore in Scorpio November 29 - January 7, 2011. In 2002 Venus was in Scorpio exclusively September 7, 2002 - January 7, 2003. This year Scorpios need to begin to share the spotlight for 40 years by 2058 it all plays out in the sign of Libra.

Venus Rx periods are not ideal for purchasing something of high value as in the final analysis what we acquire may be overvalued. I personally might avoid buying a house or a business during those 5-6 weeks (October 8-November 18). On the relationship front it isn't a great time to begin a new relationship; we might begin one for all the wrong reasons. Neither is it a good time to end a long-term relationship, we might want out for all the wrong reasons, particularly when we decide during the retrograde period rather than that the decision was made and now you knew it was time.

Venus began her Evening Star phase nine months ago on January 11, when Venus and the Sun met in Capricorn, and set the agenda for us. Let's deal with practical matters, do things right—steady and slow progress, none of those get rich fast schemes. Venus retrograde periods occur at 18-month intervals, and last those magical (biblical) forty days and forty nights. Stations in astrology increase the potency of the planet. The effects we may feel are stronger and have extended influences on our lives.

Venus begins her Morning Star phase on October 28 with a meeting with the Sun at 5°Scorpio 30'—a New Venus, which occurs at eight-year intervals in each of the five signs. Until then we need to decide what to release, what no longer meets with our personal approval or serves our desires in life. All of the retrograde periods are review times in our lives, now the question becomes does something still hold value to you, be that your closest relationship or that brand new vehicle in the drive way. If what you have is deemed unimportant by you not others, it will be eliminated by you. Others by their actions and words will influence your thought processes, but ultimately the decisions are yours based on your own values as weighted against those of others.

We may be feeling increasing disappointment with the choices those near and dear to us appear to be making, the clashing of values can start gaining momentum now. Scorpio likes to have control and Venus in Scorpio will go to 'battle' for what she believes in and finds worthy. Scorpio symbolically and literally represents death. This sign reveals where we are letting go of things and issues that are no longer feasible—those that cannot survive. This is one of those "tests of time". Do a cyclical clean up by eliminating unnecessary "clutter" from your life. Note that this is an excellent time—hey almost four months— to refocus on what you want out of the next eight years of your life in a specific area of your life.

Once Venus marches on as a Morning Star, we begin our acquisition phase of nine months. We have taken the time to re-evaluate and now we know what we want and are going after it. All of this plays out in our natal charts, which are the blueprint or pattern for our life. Reality is that we cannot do something that your conscience objects to, which is another part of our lives Venus also "controls"; she ensures that we check in with our higher self before committing to anything.

Scorpio at its most extreme can be without scruples; Venus is not thought to be happy nor functions well in the sign of her detriment. Venus in Scorpio ends with the Epiphany (great revelation) on January 7, 2011, as the biblical term for the date the festive season ends implies, by then we should have got the message. These Venus periods last long enough to make a difference, and most recently repeat from 1994 and 2002—- remember those months?
