Battle of the Giants

In the past few years all of outer planets have changed signs. We know about the turmoil in the world, the economy, which is not settled yet and the massive earth changes in various parts of the world. We have Pluto eliminating structures both literally and figuratively, Uranus is busily creating abrupt changes in both our landscape and in our personal lives...Neptune slipped into Pisces this year for a fourteen year stint, and fairytales are front and centre in the media. These changes must filter into our personal lives, we are after all a significant part of the collective experience. The talk, while addressing some of the collective changes will be geared to look at how the battle of the giants is playing out in your personal life. Please bring along your own chart, so you can watch the current 'drama and comedy' in your life—both literally and figuratively.

Thursday January 10, 2013 7:30PM Rose Marcus, CAP ISAR

Over the years, Evolutionary Astrologer Rose Marcus has written for numerous publications and projects. (Rose wrote the daily forecasts for The Mountain Astrologer in 2007/08.) Her first book, "Insights into Evolutionary Astrology", Llewellyn Worldwide, was released in July, 2010. Lecture engagements for 2013 include The Edmonton Astrology Association Conference in April, 2013, and Norwac in Seattle, May 2013.

Rose publishes a in-depth monthly forecast on her website (sign up tot receive it via email), and a weekly astrology column for The Georgia Straight, Vancouver. The week-ahead column is published every Thursday on line: www.straight.com/lifestyles

On the last Wednesday of every month, Rose joins host Kristin Fontana on Guiding Stars Radio, www.healthylife.net to discuss the transits for the month ahead. An archive of the radio show podcasts and more can be found on Rose's website.

Year Ahead—2013

Beginning with a new term for the US president, more worries over the world wide economy and national security, and more push come to shove on the controversial issue of oil production and pipelines, 2013 takes us into our second year of the Uranus square Pluto transit cycle, and first full year of Saturn in Scorpio. A mutual reception between Saturn and Pluto, along with five eclipses across the Taurus/Scorpio nodal axis makes is sure to keep the intensity going strong. For our evening lecture, Rose will share her thoughts on the transits for 2013.

The first six Nakshatras...

Knowing the name of the Nakshatras, their degrees of influence and symbols are a start to understanding the effect they can have in a chart. Volumes can be written on each Nakshatra. What will be presented here will be a few of the points pertaining to each of the Nakshatras. The majority of the information comes from Prash Trivedi's wonderful book The Book of Nakshatras.

The first Nakshatra Ashwini covers the first 13°20' of Aries in the sidereal zodiac. Twin horse heads are the symbol for this Nakshatra. Horses in many cultures are the symbol of power, courage, movement, vitality, along with a willingness to travel and serve the needs of others. These are exactly the qualities to be merged with any planet siting in this space. Other important traits applied to Ashwini are the power of healing, the knowledge of herbs, an ability to restore life and aid childbirth. Remember, horses can be quite skittish and high strung, however there is never any doubt about their alertness. One of the most remarkable traits with horses is their willingness to be of service by carrying riders, cargo or by pulling great weights. These qualities are very much a part of and merge with any planets placed in this Nakshatra.

Bharani covers from 13°20' to 26°40' Aries. The vagina symbolizes and emphasizes the high degree of creativity and fertility associated with this Nakshatra. The strongest trait within this Nakshatra relates to the contradictory extremes within this Nakshatras basic makeup. For example, it represents the extremes of life and death, bohemia and puritanism, naiveté and wisdom, maturity and immaturity. Even with such built in contradictions Bharani is a basically a jovial Nakshatra. Boredom is rarely a factor when dealing with Bharani!

Krittika, 26°40' Aries to 10° Taurus, has a knife, razor or axe as a symbol. These are all sharp items which make it easy to see the strength of Krittika lies in its ability to be sharp and penetrating. Naturally any sharp object can be either very constructive or destructive and Krittika is no different. A second aspect of Krittika has to do with the fire inherent within it. Physical digestion or anger associate with the fire of Krittika. Here militaristic and combative energy is seen on a physical plane. On a mental plane the fire aids in the ability to assimilate new knowledge as well as feeding the natural curiosity and intuition inherent within this Nakshatra.

Rohini sits between 10° Taurus to 23°20 Taurus and has the Ox-cart, represent fertility, as one of its symbols. The Ox-cart was once the only means of transporting the harvest and as a result this earthy symbol emphasizes the materialistic focus found within Rohini. The qualities of steadiness, stubbornness and the ability to over-run anything which comes in its way are very much part of Rohini's character. Although very set in her goals Rohini is the favorite of Chandra, the Moon.

Mrigashira sits between 23°20 Taurus and 6°40 Gemini. This beautiful sounding name translates to mean the head of a deer. So many of the qualities associated with a deer are also associated with Mrigashira. Traits such as fragility, fickleness, curiosity, wandering and shyness are all common to this Nakshatra including beautiful eyes. Then there is the constant searching and seeking that underscores their association with all forms of travel. Like deer, residents of this Nakshatra prefer to be in scenic surroundings and when so placed, they feel comfortable and secure.

In the next issue information about the next 6 Nakshatras will be shared.

A call to writers...

I would love to see articles, poems, short commentary etc. about anything astrological. Student's corner or teacher's corner. Items about various fields of astrology such as horary, Electional, tips about how to use the energy... anecdotal stories about transits or progressions.

Please submit your articles 15 days prior to publication dates: the first of November. February. May and August with the Sun at 15° of fixed signs.

Venus will be in Libra as this newsletter is published. For the next issue Venus will be in Aquarius. Venus will be conjunct the Guild's Sun at 24°Libra mid-November. The little table on next page shows Venus ingresses in PT zone.

The Guild was founded with Venus in Virgo conjunct Jupiter in Virgo. Our Venus is fairly slow, as Venus was spending her four months in that sign.

THE FRASER VALLEY ASTROLOGICAL GUILD © 1991-2012

Letter from the Editor

www.annemassey.ca

My eldest son celebrated his 16th birthday the day the Guild was founded. October 17, 1991. 29 astrologers were present to officially found the society. Today, 21 years later, we are going out for our birthday dinner—he just turned 37! Because we have never re-issued a membership number, we know how many people have opted to support astrology in the greater Vancouver area over the years—Alison Price, our newly minted President has the number 253. Some have supported the guild for a decade or more, my membership number is 1. My sincere hope is that all of our members choose to continue support astrology in our area. Read the message from the new president on page 5.

So in this letter from the editor, I want to wish a warm welcome to Alison, as well as Martin Stock and Joan Morton who have stepped up to support both as VPs. Sukhwinder joined the Guild back in 2007 and has served on the Executive more or less from day one and continues to serve as our Treasurer. Rebecca remains our secretary and Melissa Massey, who stepped in as the acting president during the past year, will stay on in a supportive role. Charlotte Greenwood volunteered to take over the refreshments and opening the doors at 7PM prior to our talks and gatherings, which begin at 7:30PM.

This will be my second stint as the Editor, did that back in the late 1990s and into the last decade. I also remember how the first issues of the Guild News were birthed in the wee hours of the night at my house with Tannis Morton as our Editor—she had a Mac computer, which was a huge advantage back in the early part of 1990s. Illustrating that was harder...

I think the Venus statue on this page is very Venusian, in Europe there is a bigger culture for statues than in our area. Look for more images in future issues.

Anne Massey with Venus...This photo was taken in Riga, Latvia in August 2012 by my photographer sister, Ritva Sillanmäki. Naturally we couldn't resist yet another Venus statue, this one with the belt of gold no less.

Upcoming Transits

The table on this page shows the motion of Venus through the signs until the next issue. Venus is currently a morning star, that began with the occultation back in June. The next scheduled meeting between Venus and the Sun takes place March 28, 2013 @ 8° Aries 11'. So if the Uranus-Pluto combo has been wreaking havoc on your personal planet at about that degree—the Venus-Sun event that launches the Evening Star phase might just be what you need to come up with a solution.

I think that the outer planets have one major role to play in our lives. Pluto wants us to eliminate anything that has ceased to be a viable option, thing or person in our lives. Uranus wants us to get out of our rut, do something different—seeing that the old ways are no longer working. Add to that mix the agenda the exalted Sun in Aries sets with counsel from Venus, who incidentally started this particular chapter in 2009, when she spent four months in Aries asking you to decide what you loved about the concepts in the house where your Aries sector is...Back then Venus met the Sun on the sly, behind the scenes attempting to get us to rekindle our passion for something equally new and different. In the meantime, Venus will be making a journey through 6 signs to wake up your truest desires.

Venus sat down behind the CNN news desk (see "Celestial News Network"), glanced underneath it and rolled her eyes.
[Okay, this is really getting old, Mercury...]
[SSH! I don't want THEM to know I'm here, I've told you that a thousand times! Call me "Mr. X.!" If you're not going to respect my wishes, we can't do this show together!]

Venus sat back and glared at The Voice Under The Desk.
[Well, we're really not DOING it together, are we? Not with you under there all the time...Ever think of it that way?]
The Voice Under The Desk was silent for a bit.
[Well...yeah, but you should understand my need for anonymity, especially after all we've been through together lately!]
(See "Mercury in Scorpio sextile Venus in Virgo - for the past two weeks, and one more to go!")

Venus rolled her eyes again.
[Look, I get what you're saying, but you are The Messenger, and Sun will be here in a few minutes, and I'd really like you to sit in on this - and not from there!]
She patted the chair next to her.
[Come on, honey...Sit next to me...You know you want to...]
(See "sextile.")
The Voice From Under The Desk sounded nervous.
[Okay, but NO SPOTLIGHT!]

Venus nodded, shielded her eyes with her hand and peered at the camera.
[Ted? Can you help me out here, honey?]

Suddenly, the entire CNN studio went dark.
The Voice Under The Desk sounded relieved.
[Oh, now, see, that's what I'M talkin' 'bout! That's better!]
Venus sounded a bit testy.
[Um, Ted, not COMPLETE darkness, okay? Can you just dim the lights on Mercury's side of the table? Mercury, come up here and sit next to me...come on, honey, we've got work to do!]
(See "Venus in Virgo" again.")
Someone crept out from beneath the desk and took a seat next to Venus. The chair squeaked as he slid into it.

Venus smiled and patted his hand.
[There. That's better, isn't it?]
Mercury sounded nervous again.
[Not really, no, but...if you insist, I'll sit here. But NO SPOTLIGHT!]
Venus kept patting his hand.
[Okay, no spotlight. But when Sun gets here, we'll need to...]

Just then, the studio door opened and Sun came in, accompanied by an entourage of smiling admirers.
[Venus! Mercury! How nice to see you! Before we begin, is there anything I can do for you? Anything at all? I'm so very flattered that you'd want to talk to me, and ready to answer your every question! Because as you know, I aim to please!

Sun grinned pleasantly and pulled up a chair between Venus and Mercury.
(See "Sun in Libra.")

Venus pointed to her notes.
[Well, would you like to go over a few details first? The questions we'll be asking you, so you'll be prepared?]
Sun hugged Venus around the shoulders.
[No problem, sweetheart! I'm all yours! And thanks again for having me! It's just SO wonderful being here! And how are YOU, Mercury?]
(See "Sun in Libra" again.)

The camera turned to Mercury, who saw it and immediately crept back under the desk.

A red light came on and a voice from behind the camera spoke.
[On Air in...4...3...2...1...GO!]

Venus sat up straight in her chair.
[Good evening, and thanks for joining us here on CNN, your only reliable source for fair and unbiased celestial news. Tonight, our guest is Sun, who will momentarily be changing, right here on the CNN stage. So! Sun, how do you feel about this change, and how about that upcoming meeting with Saturn?]
(See "Sun conjunct Saturn, this Thursday.")

Sun cleared his throat and smiled pleasantly into the camera.
[Well, hello, everyone! I'd like to thank Venus and Mercury for having me here on CNN, and I want you to know that my heart is an open book! As far as this change goes, I'm looking forward to it, of course! I enjoy EVERY leg of my journey, mostly because of all of YOU out there, who are just SO great!]

Venus regarded Sun rather skeptically.
[So, you're not at all apprehensive about all this publicity?

Because...]
She glanced at her small, tasteful watch.
[...according to my calculations, in just a few seconds, you'll be...]
Sun grinned pleasantly again.
[No, it's all good. I LOVE attention! It's GREAT to be onstage, especially with such lovely, wonderful planets like...]

Suddenly, Sun's face changed. He stared at the camera for a second, then ducked beneath the desk.
Venus sighed heavily.
[Sun, please come out of there. We're live...]

Hushed whispers came from Beneath The Desk.
[Move OVER, Mercury! They'll SEE me!]
[NO WAY! I was here FIRST!]
[Whatever! I'm the BOSS!]
[Oh, sure, pull rank on me at a time like this!]

Venus drummed her fingers on the desk and smiled through gritted teeth.
[Well, apparently, that's it for tonight, folks. You've gotta give us and "A" for effort, though...]

New President's message

I join as your president in this, the Guild's 21st birthday year, and at a time when the group has truly become a grown-up. Not many astrology organizations can boast of such longevity. This fact alone reflects the quality of the volunteer board and the tireless support of you, the members, without whom none of this could be achieved.

It is truly an honor to be part of such an established and well respected astrology group. Stepping-up as president was most unexpected for me but there was a reason I came to Vancouver and I believe this position is my current calling. I am an astrologer who truly believes in working with the cosmos and in aligning myself with the dynamic transits as they unfold.

Over time things change and indeed have to change. It is a natural progression and development. I am new to British Columbia and so may not do things as in the past. The Guild serves the metro Vancouver astrological community and the executive board members and myself wish to provide you with a quality experience that meets your needs.

I will be calling on you for your energy and support to bring our Guild strong and glorious into it's next phase as our Saturn separates from the closing square and sweeps down towards the return. I ask that you all are open and feel able to voice your thoughts, ideas and issues about the Guild and where we are going on our journey.

They say it takes a village to bring up a child and this suggests we all have something to offer towards the common good.

I wish to thank Anne Massey for her inspiration, encouragement and no doubt her future patience answering my endless queries as I take the reins.

Please feel free to contact me at any time via the Guild email at astroguild@gmail.com.

Wishing you all astrological enlightenment.

Yours,

Alison Price

What astrologers should know

Alison Price
www.starzology.com

Introduction

Astrologers are frequently questioned about the end of the Mayan calendar scheduled to finish on December 21, 2012.

I would like to shed some light on this particular date and why it has come into such prominence by suggesting some ways for astrologers to allay fears of the end of the world which seem to be rampant in the public domain.

I participated in a video interview on the Ask Your Angels talk show about the Mayan Calendar and related subjects in August 2011.

Solstice coincidence

The winter solstice this year falls on December 21. This is a common date for the solstice and is nothing new. From an astrological point of view it is the date when the Sun makes its Capricorn ingress as it reaches the most northern point of the solar annual journey through the signs of the zodiac at about 23.26N.

Long count

The Mayan long count calendar spans over 5100 years. The current cycle began on what is known as the Creation Date of August 11, 3114 BCE and will end on December 21, 2012. Why does it end on that day? Well, it all has to do with how the Mayans measure time.

Mayan time periods

In the current western measurements of time we have the day (one revolution of the Earth), the month (one orbit of the Moon around the Earth) and the year (one orbit of the Earth around the Sun. The Maya devised five time periods:

The kin = 1 day

The winal = 20 days (a sort of month)

The tun = 18 x winal = 18 x 20 = 360 days (a sort of year)

The k'atun = 20 x tun (20 x 360 = 7200 days) nearly two decades (19.7 years)

The b'aktun = 20 x k'atun (20 x 7200 = 144000 days) nearly 394 years 144000 x 13 = 1872000 = +/- 5128 years

With these five time units the Maya were able to record important dates. Dates are usually listed vertically on the stele. The b'aktun at the top working down to the shorter time periods.

We express the Mayan time units with five Arabic numbers from left to right the b'aktun, k'atun, tun, winan and kin. The numbers are expressed as follows:

12.19.19.17.19 = December 20, 2012

13.20.20.18.20 = December 21, 2012

There are apparently 13 b'aktuns in each long count. Where the counter will revert to zero.

0.0.0.0.1 = December 22, 2012.

Sun ingresses

Let's look at how the Mayan calendar looks between now and December 21, 2012.

Mayan Date – Sun ingress date:

12.19.19. 7. 6 – SU GE May 21, 2012

12.19.19.8.17 – SU CA June 21, 2012

12.19.19.10.8 – SU LE July 22, 2012

12.19.19.12.20 – SU VI Aug 23, 2012

12.19.19.13.11 – SU LI Sep 23, 2012

12.19.19.15. 2 – SU SC Oct 24, 2012

12.19.19.16.11 – SU SG Nov 22, 2012

13. 0. 0. 0. 0 – SU CP Dec 21, 2012

13. 0. 0. 1. 11 – SU AQ Jan 22, 2013

Note the winal rolls over at 18 and not 20.

The start of the current long count date.

0. 0. 0. 0. 1 = August 11, 3114 BCE

0. 0. 0. 0. 2 = August 12, 3114 BCE

The last Baktun 1618 AD

As stated above one b'aktun equals 14400 days or 394 years. At the last increment of the b'aktun, from 11 to 12, it was on September 18, 1618AD. This is historically around the time when the Maya finally acquiesced to the Spanish. Apparently the Maya accepted change at the rollover from one b'aktun to the next b'aktun and this is somewhat confirmed by looking deeper into their history. Change is a theme for b'aktun changes.

A new dawn

Our years are based on the Earth's annual journey around the Sun. The way we count in our western calendar is that at the end of our year we simply add another one to the date and start at January again. When we reach December 31st we start again at January 1st in the New Year. So do the Maya.

Stele – carved in stone

We know so much about the Egyptians because they carved in stone and so it is with the Maya. Any culture that leaves an imprint in stone has a recorded history that is kept through the ages.

Pictographs

A pictograph is a pictorial symbol for a word, phrase or number. There are 19 pictographs used in the Mayan carvings on the stele and pyramid records. This is in line with the vegisimal number system they use.

Two schools of thought

There are two schools of thought about how the Mayan calendar progresses into the future.

Only 13 baktuns?

That the b'aktun only goes up to 13 and then reverts to zero is debated by scholars. The question being why there should only be 13 b'aktuns and not 20 as with the other units with the exception of the winan.

Further time periods?

Some evidence appears to support the idea that further time periods are accepted as follows:

20 x B'aktun = 1 Pictun

20 x Pictuns = 1 Kalabtun

20 x Kalabtun = 1 Kinichiltun

This would indicate that time is measured progressively on by just adding another 20 base unit of time at the front.

The Maya live on

In the area known as the Mayan Riviera live the descendants of the original Maya. These rich cultural people have adopted a modern way of living but they are still Mayan in their DNA. This can be seen in their strong facial features.

Conclusion

As astrologers we are used to working with time periods. Not only the basic yearly calendars but also planetary cycles such as the Saturn cycle of twenty nine years or the Jupiter twelve year cycle which loosely correlates with Chinese astrology periods. Knowing a little about how the Mayan calendar works will arm astrologers with practical answers to the question of 2012.

Appreciating that the Mayan calendar is just another example of how humans measure time places the hype of 2012 and the end-of-the-world theories into perspective.

At the AGM and in the few days that followed, we have a new executive and a new President. See the adjacent listing and our new email with a cloud for administrative purposes. A warm welcome to Alison Price! Alison is a professional consulting and teaching astrologer and avid blogger. Alison will be looking after our scheduling, the tentative schedule for the first part of the year is available on our website. Each newsletter covers three months.

Renewal time

It is time to get a new sticker on your membership card, this year these are orange and purple. The dues were increased at the annual general meeting. Regular membership is now $50, senior members (sixty and over) pay $40 and family membership is $75.

We hope that you will continue to support astrology in our area, we would not exist without your support. You can pay in person using a cheque or cash, you can renew your membership online using your credit card or PayPal account. We also have an option on our website where you can choose to donate to the Guild. Naturally you could also add a bit to your membership as you renew.

Our website

Our website is a WordPress blog, which means that our members can comment the posts, All comments are monitored and approved by Anne Massey, who looks after the site. Our tradition for many years now is to have an annual Pot-luck. We open the doors at seven. Members bring finger food or other goodies to share with others. We exchange readings—yes, you can bring your Tarot deck, runes, etc. but also your chart…

We might play games, however, mostly it is about socializing and having a good time.

I hope you choose to join us, it is always rewarding and we each go home with something new to think about and a strengthened sense our astrological community.
