Thursday Talk September 11, 2014 7:30PM with Andrew Morton

"Up Close and Personal"

Andrew Morton is an Astrologer from the United Kingdom. He is a former Vice-President of the Astrological Lodge of London and has spoken and taught on a number of subjects, including various classes, workshops and lectures on both Astrological & closely related Astronomical topics and techniques in the UK, Europe, and in North America. Andrew is the founding organizer of the Astrological Lodge of London's "Astrology and Healing" seminar, an annual event celebrating its 10th Anniversary in 2014.

Email: andrew@astroquo.com

The Inner Solar System of: Sun, Mercury, Venus, Earth/Moon and Mars, defines much of our unique individuality in a horoscope. This talk closely examines those most personal of "celestial bodies" and how their positions and inter- relationships in the "heavens above" at that moment in time of our incarnation is represented in a Birth Chart.

We explore our Solar System, the particular characteristics of each of the personal planets in their unfolding cycles, and how these translate into what is embraced by individual charts and plays out through lives on planet Earth. How faithful are we to our essential selves?

More details about the Workshops with Andrew September 13, 2014 & with Phyllis October 11, 2014

Discover Your Soul's Mission

The desire to understand the human mind and soul has been the motivating passion of my life. The constant thirsting has led down many paths of study, some ancient, some academic and some generally not understood in Western society. Today my joy is found in teaching, writing, lecturing, and workshops focusing on consciousness and individual awareness. It is my pleasure to share what I have learned with anyone willing to listen, to look within and take charge of their life. For more biographical information and to read her articles and more visit www.phyllischubb.com

Discover Your Soul's mission and what your soul is asking of you. Greater clarity of your purpose empowers life decisions. The discovery is simple the application is up to you. Information and techniques from all systems tend to get mixed and matched. A technique looking an array of significators unique to an individual's chart, is called the Charakarakas. The first one of these is called the Atmakaraka and refers to the soul and its needs and challenges. Other karakas refer to children, parents, spouse, and family members. The method of finding these significators is consistent within any system. What the Charakarakas represent and mean will be discussed along with the rules to apply them to a Tropical chart.

WORKSHOPS

"Beyond the Naked Eye"

with Andrew Morton

Saturday September 13, 2014

"Harmonic Astrology" – an integrated approach to aspects and aspect patterns in Natal Chart interpretation, using an extended aspect set combining the Ptolemaic with the so-called 'minor' aspects, reveals a hitherto unseen world contained within, more complex, more comprehensive.

The Ptolemaic aspects with which we are most familiar (sextile 60°, square 90°, trine 120°and opposition 180°, plus the conjunction 0°), are themselves derived from the ability to fairly straightforwardly measure the angular relationships between visible planets and points in the heavens through the sometimes rudimentary astronomical techniques that our ancestors employed.

To move beyond the rationale of our naked eyes and the principles of "seeing is believing" and to integrate those aspects that are less readily visible, such as the Quintile, Septile, Semi-Square, Novile and so on, with the classical visible aspects of our inheritance, enables a more complete perspective on what is enshrined in a horoscope. What innate truths, inner motivations, talents and potentials might be lying there?

We explore the angular relationships between the celestial bodies of the solar system, both seen and unseen, through the integrated use of both conventional and "Harmonic" techniques to provide an illuminating "Harmonic Astrology" approach to the interpretation of Natal Charts.

We also discover how compelling these can be in the partnering of one person with another, in uncovering the often unrecognised undercurrents in relationships and interactions between people.

Sign up online, the flyer for the event and PayPal option on our website. You can also sign up at the meeting on Thursday. Cost for members $80, Senior members $60 and non-members $100

Cycles of Consciousness

Saturday October 11, starting at 10:30 AM and continuing until about 4:30 PM

Ancient wisdom teachings, from all cultures, have repeatedly emphasized the importance of looking within one's self to find truth and the ability to direct one's consciousness. Acknowledging the importance of consciousness is one thing, the problem is remembering to use it. This workshop is about working With Cycles of Thought and Actions

The ancients emphasized the importance of consciously directing our thoughts, as thought are directly linked to our actions. The prime motivator contributing to thoughts has been defined as the Moon. Each person experiences the energy received from the Moon in a different way. Learn how you experience lunar energy. Learn what you can do to ensure the minimum number of impulsive actions that can upset your life. Learn to recognize the high times and what to do about the low times.

Workshop attendees are encouraged to send their birth charts to Phyllis prior to the event. All data can be sent to: Phyllis@phyllischubb.com

- Workshop hosted by Anne Massey at her residence or associated common room.
- Cost $45 for the all-day Saturday, hands on, intimate workshop, bring your lunch; we will offer coffee, tea and cookies.
- To register contact Anne via email at anne@annemassey.ca

Quick Update on the Education Committee

We received very supportive feedback on our questionnaire about forming an Education Committee and setting up a mentor program. Everyone who voted was in favour of it.

Several members offered to become a mentor, and a many more wished to have a mentor. Because the survey was completely anonymous, we do need those who stated they would like to mentor and to be mentored contact the guild at astroguild@gmail.com.

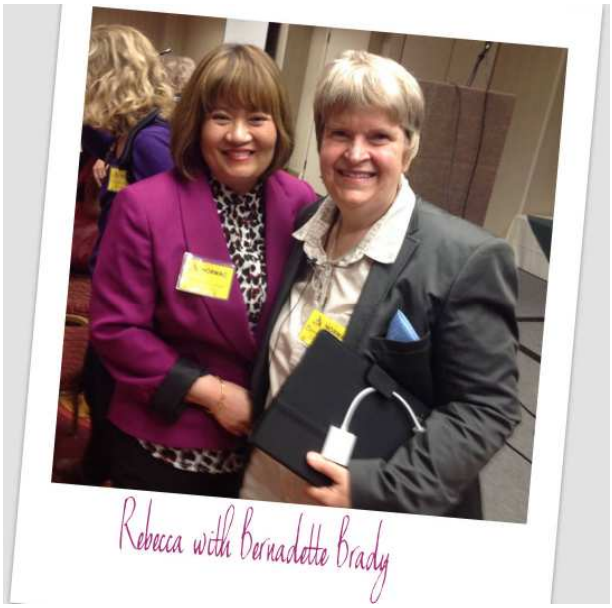
If you would like to volunteer to serve on the Committee please contact the Guild via email, so that we can create the best possible committee to work on the goals and vision, and begin setting up the program with resources for those who wish to participate.

Once the Chair for the Education Committee is in place those of our members who wish to participate on the committee or serve as a mentor will be contacted by the Chair. Our goal is to create an education program that is inline with the needs and wants of our members.

From our VP Rebecca Garcia

I attended the Northwest Astrological (NORWAC) Conference last May 22-26, 2014 in Seattle, Washington. It's my second time at this conference and it's one of the best... Everyone is very kind and friendly.

It was a great conference, with GREAT SPEAKERS (Dr. Bernadette Bradey (from UK), Darrelyn Gunzburg, Lynn Bell, Lee Lehman, Rob Hand, Demetra George, Chris Brennan, Philip Sedgwick, Laura Nalbandian, Patricia Walsh, Mark Jones, Maurice Fernandez, Jeff Jawer, Rick Levene, Aleksander Imsiragic, Lesley Francis and many more... I finally met Bernadette Brady (see [photo), one of my favourites... I love reading her books. I asked her to sign all the books that I bought in which she is the author...Bernadette is an amazing lecturer/speaker/Professional Astrologer...



I really love astrology conferences and I wish I could go to more of them. Well, of course, the primary criteria I consider in determining whether to attend or not are topics, speakers, location, and cost.

By attending the NORWAC Conference, I was able to:

1. take classes on different astrological subjects;
2. learn several techniques I can use;
3. meet professional astrologers who've books I've read;
4. meet fellow members of FVAG;
5. network in person with other Astrologers;
6. spend time with other Astrologers in a social setting; we had party (dancing) after the conference;
7. take pictures with some very good speakers, whom I really admire...
8. mingle with speakers and first timers during a yummy lunch or dinner meal and had conversation and bonding; and
9. buy jewellery (real gems) and more astrology books.

Indeed, attending Astrology Conferences will help you mold your way of becoming a very good Professional Astrologer, one way or another...I am looking forward to attending the next NORWAC Conference next year! It's an OPPORTUNITY!

For those of you who have not attended an Astrology Conference yet, NORWAC is highly recommended! Blessings!

LEO ASTROSTORY

by Janice Brown

Ranging from 'the voice of authority' to outright power madness, this brand of cat loves the spotlight and rarely disappoints. A Leo needs to produce, and creativity of all kinds pours out. If they are not actually performing, they will gladly fill you in on their plans. They need appreciation for their effort. A great pride lives in Leos. They do their best, as they see it, in every situation. Lady Luck seems to bail them out at every tight corner. In love (and this especially includes their children), their need to dominate, and their frank, outspoken nature can overshadow their good hearts and generous spirit. Their freely given time, money and knowledge can be forgotten as they issue edicts from the throne. Love this mate for what they do—not the tone of what they say—to bask in the warmth and light and protection of true love. Never deny them dignity and, oh yes, for goodness sake, applaud the sexual drama as best ever. LEO loves to top its own performance!

Our Leo Heroine

Breathless

Judith closed her briefcase with a decisive snap and lowered its considerable weight to the floor beside her new mahogany desk. Of course, she would attend the hospital committee meeting. The National Sales Leader of Home World Real Estate had gotten where she was by attending to duty. Nothing had changed.

"Let's confirm tomorrow's schedule before I go" she called to her assistant, Sandi. The young woman sprang into her office, Day-Timer poised and smiling broadly.

"You got it, boss," Sandi chirped, and Judith marvelled at her 6:30 pm freshness. It had been a great move to hire that babysitter to relieve Sandi of household drudgery. She was free now to enjoy her job and her kids when she got back home.

Judith returned the smile and together they confirmed the next arduous, fully booked day. Precision was paramount to preserve Judith's position, and not let her charity obligations slacken. Besides being good for the heart, public service also fed the business and there were 135 souls under her wings now, all depending on her leadership.

At exactly 6:55, Judith slickly maneuvered her sports car through the evening traffic. It was almost distraction enough, but not quite. An unbidden thought, (successfully pushed aside for days), leaped full-blown into her mind's eye. It was a face. The handsome male face, with faintly mocking eyes, she might see again tonight at St. Jude's Children's Hospital board meeting. She changed gears with more energy than necessary hoping to grind away the strange soft excitement.

Janice is a professional astrologer, whose columns appeared in Shared Vision Magazine, Vancouver Courier, Romance Writers of America's newsletter, and various American publications. She also wrote a series of short stories to demonstrate the likely characteristics of the 12 Zodiac Signs. Each sign has adventurers and slackers, heroes and villains: men, women, and children, acting out astrology's urges or giving their urges a second thought.

Janice currently co-writes 'AstroInsight' weekly tweets with Anne Massey. You can read these on her website and by following her on twitter

AstroJanice www.facebook.com/astroinsight

There were so many urgent issues and decisions to consider in this fifteen minutes on the road that drifting into romantic speculation was not on the program. Besides, romantic relationships were a disaster for her. Judith knew she burned brightly and drew attention to the force of her personality. She dressed to professional perfection and, although she felt a bit too tall, too thin for her liking, it did not stop a steady stream of weak-willed men, drawn to her flame, eager to lean on her strength. All too soon, they whined she had no time for them. Only her love of opera and theatre (and her seat on the board) caused her to accept dates with escorts and accept the inevitable disappointment.

The hospital committee meeting had full attendance. Not surprising. There was genuine fear over the next fiscal funding and every department was hurting.

Involuntarily, she searched the tables for that face and felt a lonely emptiness when he was not there. "Snap out of it, girl," she chided herself and resolved to focus completely on the business-at-hand.

An hour slid by, in heated debate, before a voice loudly requested the Chief of Surgery's opinion. Judith was about to say that unfortunately, the Chief was not in attendance, but as she looked up from her notes she realized that all heads had turned in one direction. Her gaze followed, to find the man's eyes locked only on hers.

So, that's who he was! Suddenly her sweater was too warm, the room was airless and she needed a sip of water badly, but moving was impossible. She tore her gaze away and stared at her notes, seeing nothing but listening intently.

His arguments were sound; the suggestions put forth with logic and humour. The general tension in the room eased for all but Judith. Strung like a wire and feeling as unstable as a novice tight-rope walker, she began organizing her papers as the meeting broke up.

A glance towards the engaging face found the man in motion and coming her way. Dignity won out over panic and as she took his hand for a formal greeting, he pulled her gently towards him and told her, quietly, "I adore successful women and I am not looking for another mother." His mischievous smile belied the insight of his words.

He squeezed her hand reassuringly and continued, "See you at the next meeting. Perhaps we can schedule a coffee afterwards?"

He was gone before she could either breathe or reply.

Certification

ISAR consulting skills for Astrologers and the ISAR (International Society for Astrological Research) competency Exam is coming to Vancouver. The dates (later in 2015) are yet to be determined. If you are interested in learning more check out www.isarastrology.com and please contact Anne Massey to learn more about this opportunity.

Chris McRae who is the Vice President of ISAR said that her involvement with the ISAR certification program began 14 years ago —she continues to serve as the Chair— she felt that as astrologers we should elevate the standards of our profession and not wait for the Academia to do so. The Competency Exam tests exactly that! No trick questions just knowledge of the tools of our trade and ability to delineate charts. Over the past decade the program has been offered in several countries in South America, Europe, Russia, China in addition to the States. It is on the schedule for the ISAR conference in Arizona next month, and Chris will be in China a second time later this year.

Jupiter in Leo

by Anne Massey

In astrology, Jupiter is the greater benefic, whatever it 'touches' expands and grows. People with a prominent Jupiter are 'larger than life'—not just jovial but even physically taller, bigger. Jupiter represents the expansion principle, promotion and the strength of our convictions. It can also be the one influence that we pin our 'hopes' on. The repeat pattern with Jupiter is 12 years, so we had the same energy in play back in Aug. 2002- Aug. 2003

As I was contemplating what to write this time, and what image to use, and flipping through columns I have written about this topic over the years—I started seeing images of a thermostat or a barometer; I recall the previous Jupiter in Leo summer seasons as sweltering hot (here in southern British Columbia, we don't really witness a summer each year like we would love to...).

Timeline: July 17, 2014-August 8, 2015

Jupiter leaves the sign of Cancer, which is its exaltation; so as astrologers we might overestimate the perks for it... The reality I witness with it, is the fact that the ever-changing Moon governs the sign of Cancer, so fickle the fates... I am rationalizing the for the next year Jupiter gets its advice from the more rational Sun and the Sun only changes signs once a month, so we should have more consistency...

Jupiter bestows good things upon us. There was a reason I chose such an old-fashioned word—bestow—it implies that we are presented something valuable and potentially undeserved. Jupiter is a planet of great expectations and represents growth and expansion. With Jupiter we expect to win the lottery and when that great promotion or the increased income is bestowed upon us, we feel let-down because we didn't get those millions. What Jupiter promises or leads us to believe this year and what she brings depends on what area is affected for each sign.

Planets have virtues; meaning assets and qualities. I do think that part of that virtue is justice, particularly the ethics and our moral code. Aristotle states Justice is the moderation between selfishness and selflessness. The word benefic is about doing good deeds and being rewarded for that.

Jupiter moves into Leo, the element of fire is nice as it is inspired, generous (Leo), gregarious and back to promising big things and delivering a little less and less along the lines of our expectations. Jupiter as we know is grand expectations, and in light of the path he has trampled along to get to this zodiacal position, which has been a bit of a jungle, we should know that those expectations won't be fully met. The price we pay the piper when it comes to Jupiter is less in Leo than it was in Cancer, because this time only our egos get bruised not our emotions.

Leo is about romance (the wooing), creativity (the inspiration) and children (the seed we planted), and it is about having fun. There is typically an upturn with Leo and the markets, but the bigger upturn might be that despite of what is going on we as people are going to want to have more FUN.

Jupiter is about MORE. Jupiter in Leo might have to do with real estate, gambling, ventures, and he is more likely to take a risk in Leo than in Cancer. Sometimes speculation pays off, but do resist the temptation to mortgage the home to finance a trip to Vegas, because with Jupiter you can also loose BIG. Jupiter really isn't about getting something for nothing, although sometimes we anticipate it that way, we build unrealistic expectations. Do you realize that there are thousands of people out there who firmly believe their retirement funds are going to be generated by a lottery win, it isn't even an if for them only a when. Who else could play you like that but Jupiter?

Jupiter is about giving. Santa Claus, who oddly enough has his day when the Sun is Capricorn (tropically), is definitely a Jupiterian fellow. He doesn't get but unselfishly gives. Curiously enough St. Nick was a priest, who did good deeds. We need to remember that Christmas and the festival of the Sun are the two events that were merged into December 24-25, so that the church could tell the pagans celebrating the return of the Sun that they were actually celebrating a religious Christmas.

From a predictive point the shift by Jupiter is likely to bring about a more positive approach, make people more likely to have fun and the entertainment industry might boom with it. People slowly emerging from economic or emotional hardship want to have distractions. Laughter is good medicine for most things that ail us. The real estate market might turn up as well, and the mortgage rates are likely to start climbing up.

Jupiter can be easy come AND easy go; we just ignore the easy go part. Jupiter in Leo out there in the world is likely to inflate the price of gold (a Sun-Leo ruled precious metal), and the entertainment industry is likely to bring out flashy, big productions for our watching pleasure. This is just a year, not a really long cycle. Maybe gold coloured cars are making yet another comeback. Be the colour as it may, the new models are likely to have more luxury features. Leo loves luxury on any scale—to a Leo their house or den is always their castle. The Leo's favourite chair is always more than a chair it is his/her throne, it may just be a lazy-boy, but it is a throne; want to test this—try and place a claim on it.

The sign of Leo is also associated with children and while Jupiter of more and better is in this sign, children's issues are likely to surface more prominently. Leo is the sign that likes to claim centre stage, it does come naturally – I have yet to meet a Leo who did not know that astrologically speaking they were a Leo.

Jupiter in the same sign is approx. a 12 year cycle, varies a little as Jupiter spends more time in certain signs than others. So if you have your 12th, 24th, 36th, 48th, 60th etc. birthday coming up, you are experiencing a Jupiter return, which traditionally brings in a good year. Note that as the cycle is actually a little shorter than 12 years, from the 4th return onwards, it arrives prior to the birthday. With Jupiter you always need to bear in mind, that it's the great expectations that tend to dim the reward not that the streak of luck isn't there; we simply tend to hanker after more.

Returns of Jupiter are a reset years, the actual connection might only last a few days, however the influence is of greater magnitude. Jupiter is about expansion and growth and in a way we get twelve years to work on it, and then we are off to a new level.

If you are interested in learning more about the Jupiter story for your life, the Jupiter's Promise by Stephanie Clement is excellent, and at $10 not expensive either. You can order it directly from me via my website. It will arrive via email as a pdf document.

Visit my site www.astrologicallyspeaking.com for a quick look at what Jupiter might grow and expand in your life for almost 13 months starting with July 17, 2014.

September 2014 ISAR conference in Phoenix Arizona

I am headed for this conference, and will be part of the registration staff as well as manning a table at the Coffee Chats Saturday morning. There will be another one on Friday affording attendees the opportunity to chat with the presenters and ISAR representatives in a very informal setting.

Goran Vrakela & Marnie Jamieson will be attending the conference as well. There is still time to register—find details at www.isarastrology.com; a report about it in the next issue of the Guild News.

Quick Notes

Super Moons season is upon us. There are three that qualify. The one in July 12, August 10, and September 8 are bigger and brighter than usual—about 20% brighter and 14% bigger. The term originated with astrology but recently astronomers have begun talking about—it is making news broadcasts. The Moon is at perigee during these Full Moons, thus closest to Earth. Object close to us, such as planets retrograde, are 'up close & personal'—so these are somewhat more significant.

The second Eclipse Season is in October. The total lunar eclipse takes place October 8 at 3:51 PDT at 15 Aries 05; and the partial Solar eclipse two weeks later on October 23 at 14:57 PDT. at 0 Scorpio 25.

Mars is picking up pace. In Scorpio from July 26-September 13, in Sagittarius from that date until October 26 when he moves into Capricorn until December 4.

Autumnal Equinox occurs September 22 at 19:29 PDT; the Sunrise is exactly due East twice a year at the Equinoxes.

Mercury will be retrograde October 4-25, 2014. In the table below the dates when Mercury is at the degrees of the stations [twice each] and the inferior conjunction [three times].

☿℞	@ 2	♏ 18	04.10 & 10.11 - Rx station degree
☿☌	@ 23	♎ 24	20.09, 16.10 & 03.11— New Mercury degree
☿☽	@ 16	♎ 45	14.09 & — 25.10 Direct station degree

Mercury crosses the Rx degree the final time on November 10.

In the adjacent table are the ingresses for Mercury for the balance of the year.

In 2015 Mercury stations are all in Air signs as Mercury spends more than half the year in the three Air signs—Gemini, Libra and Aquarius. Each Air sign gets 66-69 consecutive days. Therefore the areas of life in each chart occupied by an Air sign will be under close scrutiny in 2015.

Year at A Glance for 2015 is available from Anne Massey.
